Water Treatment Plant

Include this information:

- Tell what a water treatment plant is. It is the place a town uses to make water clean for people of the town to drink.
- Water comes to the water treatment plant from its natural source.
- It is often muddy. Sometimes it has objects in it that could make people sick.
- The people who work in the water treatment plant test the water.
- They clean the water with a special process using large vats and chemicals.
- When the water is clean, it passes through pipes to homes, schools, business, and other places in the town.
